

Claims

A sandwich panel including the skins connected with placed between said 5 skins zigzag corrugated core having the alternating protrusions and recesses with the use of adhesive composite material is characterized by that the plane slanting ridges are connected in-between along the protrusions and recesses zigzag lines by means of curvilinear parts, whose radius is not less than the core material thickness, whereas along said parts made is the line perforation providing the 10 adhesive material get into the holes of the perforation in the course of core-skins assembling

15

20

25